23 Bail Out of U. S. Plane in Cold N. Atlantic

LONDON (AP) — A U. S. Air Force giant RB 36 reconnaissance bomber, with 23 men aboard, plunged in flames into the cold North Atlantic today about 500 miles south of Iceland. A search plane reported several hours later it had sighted five survivors on a raft.

The 23 aboard jumped into the icy waters from their downed craft. The searchers first spotted survivors bobbing on the high seas 240 miles west of Prestwick, Scotland. The rescue plane tried to establish radio contact with the raft, which normally has a small transmitter.

The merchant ship Uruguay also radioed it had reached the scene. Later, another bit of wreckage was sighted 285 miles east-southeast of the raft. An American search plane that made this find said it believed a floating silk parachute was among the jumbled floating mass spotted. The plane circled the area awaiting the arrival of a surface vessel.

It was assumed that because of the speed with which the bomber traveled, the men who jumped were scattered over a wide area. With dusk approaching in the search area, it is easier sometimes to spot a single man by night by the glare with which his survival suit is equipped than it is to see him in daylight, airman said.

As soon as the raft was spotted, the searching plane dropped a light and radioed other aircraft in the area. Another search plane, like the first an RB29, also dropped at boat.

Other American and British aircraft engaged in the search halted their rectangular flying patterns and began flying in wide circles around the area to determine if any men had drifted away. The wreckage was sighted at 12:30 p. m., British summer time (5:36 a. m., CST), or just over eight hours after the big plane plunged into the water.

The SB29 — a bomber converted to air-sea rescue work — which sighted the survivors was from the U.S. Air Force base at Southport, England. Two seaplanes also reached the scene but were unable to land because the waves were too high. They were ordered back to Prestwick, Scotland.

Drizzle reduced visibility to one mile, and the cloud ceiling was down to 100 feet.

However, operations officers said the boats dropped by the SB29s were large and well-equipped and any of the survivors who reached them would be safe until rescuers arrive. The meager reports received here indicated that the men parachuted from the bomber, world's largest plane in regular operation, at 2,400 feet. It was thought, however, that some might have stayed aboard and tried to ditch the aircraft in the waves, running as high as 10 feet.

Nineteen American and British military rescue planes roared off runways in Britain, France and Ireland and headed for the scene. The British Navy frigate Tenacious under orders to go at top speed, raced from London, Northern Ireland.

First indication of trouble came shortly after 4 a. m. when the plane reported that an engine was on fire. Nineteen minutes later the pilot messaged Ruislip that the blaze was out of control and "we are leaving the aircraft."

About 190,000 trucks are used in the United States to distribute milk.

East German Police Flee to the West

BERLIN (AP) — Thirty-seven East German soldiers and policemen fled to West Berlin today in the second largest mass desertion of Red armed forces this year.

The fugitives, including one officer, deserted from the food blockade which the Soviet one government set up around Berlin last Saturday to kill off American relief for 18 million East Germans. Twenty were from the Red Wehrmacht and 17 from the people's police.

The record for one day's flight was set June 24, a week after the East German revolt, when 40 soldiers and policemen applied here for political asylum. The total for 1953 is 2,555—two-thirds of them army troops.

The Communist hunger blockade and a rash of terror trials cut sharply the rush of East Germans to receive free American food packages in West Berlin.

Tarpley Seeks Second Term as Alderman

C. W. Tarpley, candidate for reelection for Alderman of Ward One, today issued the following statement in behalf of his candidacy:

"I am asking for my second term, which is an established Democratic custom, as Alderman Ward One. My church, the schools and civic betterment have had first place in my interests. I am a deacon in the First Presbyterian church and with my family take an active part in all phases of church life. That Big Ape Is 27-Years Old Today

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Bamboo, the Philadelphia Zoo's most publicized ape, is 27 years old today, but his birthday party has been canceled.

The middle-aged (comparable age of a human being: 54), gray-haired gorilla's usually nasty disposition has been aggravated by a bad stomach.

Consequently, there will be no cereals; not tempting watermelon with banana candles to hurl at passers-by — a sport the lean, tough ape takes to with indiscreet delight.

Bamboo's normal diet of grain, fruit and vegetables to keep him trim and healthy was upset by some uninformal visitor who tossed into the cage the other day.

Bamboo arrived at the zoo in 1927 as a scrawny infant. Experts figured he had not long to live. Curator of Mammals Frederick A. Ulmer Jr. credits his survival to his rigid diet. Today Bamboo is the biggest, strongest, largest and, probably, meanest gorilla in captivity.

His keeper insists it isn't captivity that's given him such a distorted outlook toward the human race. "He just has an unfortunate personality," he said. "You must know plenty of people like him."

Bodies of Brothers Found in Death Valley

LONE PINE, Calif. (AP) — The bodies of two brothers were found yesterday in Death Valley near Bad Water, lowest point in the nation, and one of the hottest.

Sheriff Charles Cline said Charles Henry Ludlow III, 20, and Randall Casey Ludlow, 7, died of the heat or thirst after their car stalled. The two had left their San Diego home Saturday to drive to Death Valley National Monument. Cline said all vehicles entering the area are carefully checked to determine that they have enough gas and that the Ludlow car apparently stopped with a vapor lock.

Temperature in the area — 220 feet below sea level — was 110 yesterday.

Livestock Loans to Farmers Are Now Available

Funds for making special livestock loans to farmers and stockmen who need credit to buy feed and pay operating expenses are now available, according to W. M. Sparks, County Supervisor, Farmers Home Administration.

The special livestock loans were authorized by a recent act of Congress in connection with new disaster credit legislation. This credit, Mr. Sparks said, will be extended only to established producers and feeders of cattle and sheep, who have a reasonable chance of working out of their difficulties but cannot obtain the funds they need from private or cooperative credit sources. Loans will not be made to enable a man to go into the livestock business or to carry on commercial feed lot operations.

Application blanks are available at the Farmers Home Administration office. Mr. Sparks pointed out that loans will be made at 5 percent interest for periods up to 3 years for the purchase of feed, seed and other operating expenses. They can be renewed if renewal is found to be in the best interest of the farmer and the government.

The loan funds cannot be used to refinance debts the farmers already owe. When a farmer applies for a livestock loan, his creditors will not be asked to subordinate their claims to the Government. However, they will be expected to give standby agreement for a long enough period to enable the farmer to have a reasonable chance of recovery.

Destroyed was the Fuglar Building which houses the Keys Grocery and Market and the Fred Murphy Insurance Agency.

The state fire marshal's office in Little Rock said Deputy Fire Marshal Raymond McEuen had gone to Crossett to investigate the fire.

Russia Ready for Big-4 Meet on Germany

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union announced today it is ready for a Big Four meeting on Germany but differed with the West on what should be discussed.

In identical notes to the United States, Britain and France, the Russians also renewed their long-standing proposal for a big power parley — including Communist China — on other problems threatening world peace.

The three Western ministers, after their Washington meeting, had proposed July 15 that Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov meet with them to discuss an Austrian independence treaty and, for Germany, "the organization of free elections and the establishment of a free all-German government."

The Soviet reply, delivered yesterday to the three Western embassies, counterproposed that the foreign ministers discuss:

1. "Measures to decrease tension in international relations."

2. "The German problem including the problem of re-establishment of German unity and the conclusion of a peace treaty."

The Soviets said they had voiced their attitude on Austria in a note July 30 to the Western Powers, in which they asked the West to drop the "short form" treaty and

Death March Survivor Back Again

FREEDOM VILLAGE (AP) — An American who survived the terrible Bataan death march in the Philippines in World War II and was a prisoner of the Communists in Korea came back to liberty Wednesday.

He is Cpl. John L. Dixon, 32, of San Jose, Calif.

As a Red captive, Dixon was forced to march with 50 others from Seoul to the Yalu River boundary of Manchuria — about 200 miles. He was captured Dec. 31, 1950.

"I marched for more than a month to reach a prison camp at the Yalu," Dixon said. "Some men died. North Koreans who guarded us on the march threatened to kill any one who dropped out of the line of march, so we helped or carried our buddies who had frost bitten feet or who otherwise were unable to walk."

"I remember how one of my buddies. He fell on the ice while we were crossing a frozen river. A guard began punching him with a rifle, ordering him to get up. I came up and felt his pulse. He was dead."

"They fed us cracked corn and millet. We were half starved and half frozen the whole trip. Many of the night we spent in open cowsheds with temperatures far below freezing. I would spend a lot of every night jumping up and down to keep my feet and hands from freezing. Lice were eating us up."

"But got through that one just like I got through the Bataan death march. Looking back on both experiences, I think the Bataan march was worse."

Asked whether he preferred captivity by the Communists or the Japanese, Dixon replied:

"I think the Communists were an improvement over the Japanese. The food wasn't good over here but I wasn't starved all the time. When I was a prisoner of the Japs, I was always hungry."

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — Cpl. John L. Dixon, 32, who was released by the Communists yesterday in the Korean prisoner of war exchange, is a survivor also of the Bataan death march of World War II.

"It makes me feel just fine," said his father, John A. Dixon. John enlisted in the Army in 1930 after graduating from high school in Ventura, Calif.

Captured in the fall of Bataan, he was a prisoner of the Japanese four years, mostly working in coal mines and dropping from 160 pounds to 90.

After World War II, he left the Army but re-enlisted and went to Korea with the 24th Division. He was wounded, recovered and went back to the front, where he was captured Jan. 3, 1951.

Little Action in City Council Conference

Hope City Council passed a couple of ordinances last night, frowned on city employees working at extra jobs, and made plans to dig a new water well.

A complaint was made to councilmen that some city electrical plant workers were taking jobs after working hours, a move which the council went on record as disapproving but felt there was no authority to keep them from doing so.

On the recommendation of C. O. Thomas, engineer, the council agreed to accept bids for drilling a new water well. An ordinance was passed setting up Street Improvement District No. 31 and another created an alley extending from East Third to East Fourth Street.

A committee recommended the Community Rest Room be repaired and ask the council to go by and see the need for themselves. The group also decided to purchase a new mower for Fair park from Hamm Tire & Appliance, low bidders.

Relate Last Minute Chinese Doublecross

By WILLIAM MILLER

The first group of war prisoners released by the Communists started home today but a dangerously high percentage were reported suffering advanced tuberculosis.

Seventy Americans and 32 other United Nations troops gained freedom, some for the first time in three years, in the first exchange of "Operation Big Switch." They told of new atrocities and a last-minute Red doublecross.

Over half of the first 70 United Nations repatriates reaching Freedom Village near Pusan suffered tuberculosis and other lung disorders. Some complained they were starving.

Newsman at Pannunjom could hear the prisoners coughing as they rode to freedom in cheap blue Chinese uniforms on Russian trucks that bore the trademark of the "Molotov Motor Plant."

Seventy more Americans will be freed Thursday at 9 a. m. (11 p. m. EDT Wednesday) along with more than 300 other Allied fighting men. The first repatriates were taken to Freedom Village and then to the port of Inchon where ships stood by to return them to their families.

Maj. John Dugan of San Pablo, Calif., stuck his head out of the Soviet truck bearing his group into Pannunjom and shouted his name to newsmen.

He told them how the Communists had jailed some Americans, including high-ranking officers, only two days before the first group of prisoners left the Yalu collection point on the journey to freedom.

Dugan said the officers were imprisoned on trumped-up charges of "instigating against peace."

The United Nations was expected to protest vehemently against the Communists' treachery and demand immediate release of the prisoners in accordance with agreements in the Korean armistice.

Dugan was the first of 3,313 returning Americans to identify himself.

Military censors held up the names of other repatriates until they positively had identified them. At Freedom Village one American prisoner described the horror of a death march that killed 1,250 Americans and others told of mistreatment in prison camps.

Altogether, in addition to the Americans, 26 Britons, 23 Turks, 12 Filipinos, 250 South Koreans, and one Australian, one Canadian, one Belgian, one South African and one Greek were liberated Wednesday.

Some 400 will be released daily in exchange for 2,400 prisoners held by the Allies until all 12,780 Communist-held prisoners and 75,000 captives of the United Nations are released.

At Freedom Village, Cpl. Richard M. Day of Booneville, Ark., one of 35 sick and wounded Americans in the first batch of repatriates, told a story of horror.

Dulles Orally Delivers Ike's Message

By ROBERT B. TUCKMAN

ABOUT 10 U. S. Secretaries of State Dulles today delivered an oral message from President Eisenhower to President Syngman Rhee and reached quick agreement with the Rhee South Korean leader on the ground they will cover in vital post-armistice talks.

Emerging from a 40-minute visit with Rhee, Dulles told newsmen the session "went very well." We had a good, friendly, happy talk and agreed on topics to be discussed.

Dulles did not disclose the nature of the message he brought from Eisenhower. But he told reporters he had three agreed to discuss these points at their four-day conference which may determine if the Korean truce becomes lasting peace.

1. The Korean political conference, which, by terms of the armistice, must be held by late October and, presumably, the Joint U. S. Korean staff which will be taken there.

2. A mutual security pact between the United States and South Korea which may be drafted during the Dulles visit.

3. American economic aid to South Korea, 200 million dollars of which was approved by Congress last week.

Dulles said he would call on Rhee daily until Saturday, with the next meeting set for 10 a. m. Thursday at 10 p. m. Wednesday, EPT.

Meanwhile, members of his party will meet with South Korean government officials to work out details of the policy issues.

Accompanying Dulles and sitting in on the conversations with Rhee were Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, chief U. S. representative to the United Nations, Assistant Secretary of State Walter S. Roberts and President Eisenhower's special envoy to Korea who last month gained Rhee's conditional agreement to an armistice with U. S. Ambassador Ellia O. Briggs and Assistant Secretary of State.

NEW YORK STOCKS

NEW YORK, N. Y., August 4.—Considerable irregularity developed in today's stock market with prices going lower on balance.

Profit-taking, which appeared in the market yesterday, continued today on a more moderate scale.

Losses extended to a little better than a point at the most while gains were usually in the minor fractions.

Major divisions in the unchanged to lower class included railroads, automobiles, oil, and motion pictures.

Building materials, and distilleries appeared to be a trifle higher without much trading. Other divisions were mixed, with the exception of the copper.

Congress to Start Annual Travels

WASHINGTON, D. C., August 4.—The congressional traveling season is under way and before it ends next January the American congressman probably will be a familiar figure from the Congo to California.

Not all between-session traveling turns out to be a pleasure jaunt. Despite the popular treatment reserved for this activity on Capitol Hill, most lawmakers take their inspection with deadly seriousness.

And instructed by their travel agents, they have been known to negotiate on problems which sometimes stumped the executive branch.

Probably the most ambitious travel of this year have been chartered by the House Agriculture Committee and the Senate Foreign Relations and House Foreign Affairs committees.

The House Agriculture members already are rolling around the country on an arduous tour, but that will take them into practically every farm area between now and winter.

They are after first-hand information from the grass roots level preparatory to writing new farm support bills next year.

House Foreign Affairs members will be in the Far East, Near East, South America and Europe before snow flies. Their Senate colleagues have tentatively agreed on travels to Latin America, the Far East and the Middle East.

Russia Ready

has proposed and return to negotiations on the detailed draft long under discussion by deputy foreign ministers.

"It goes without saying that a possible successful solution of the German problem could also help a solution of the Austrian question," the latest note said.

In Washington, State Department officials said the Soviet note was under study. These officials said they welcomed the Russian acceptance but that some of the conditions laid down by the Russians might be unacceptable to the West.

They expressed particular concern over the suggestion that Red China be brought into future talks.

Proposing a separate and wide conference of foreign ministers, such a lessening of international tension, the Russian note said Asia should be discussed with the participation of the Chinese People's Republic is essential.

"The great Chinese people are united and rallied as never before by the Chinese People's Republic. They now justly demand the re-establishment of their legal rights in all international affairs," the Kremlin declared.

The note repeated charges previously made in the Russian press that the July conference of the Big Three foreign ministers had made "preliminary agreements" which "can have a negative influence on the whole process of the conference of the foreign ministers of the four powers."

"Such a conclusion is naturally derived from the fact that the three participants of this conference have beforehand bound themselves to separate agreements even without attempting to establish free discussion of ripe international problems," the note said.

The note charged the Western invitation "ignored the necessity to settle the basic problems" of Germany, which the Russians termed "the realization of the national unity of Germany and the conclusion of a peace treaty."

The Western call for discussions on "organization of free German elections," said the Russians, "reduces the whole matter to lengthy discussions — on whether the situation in Germany should or should not be investigated by certain foreign representatives, and how and why all these investigations, insulting for the German people, should be carried out, etc."

The note also assailed "measures being taken for the militarization of Western Germany," but said despite these "considerations," the Soviet government "attaches great importance to a joint examination of the German problem and hopes such a discussion will make it possible to examine thoroughly the problems concerned with the re-establishment of German unity which together with settlement of the problem of a peace treaty with Germany will help to consolidate peace in Europe."

DOROTHY DIX

Takes Her Marriage Lightly

Dear Miss Dix: I was married four years ago at the age of 17 to a man eight years my senior. I knew I wasn't in love with him at the time, but I married to get away from a disagreeable home atmosphere. Although my husband is good in many ways, he pays very little attention to me. Ever since our marriage I've been falling in and out of love with other men, but now I know I have met the right one. Should I tell my husband?

HAZEL
Answer: Then what do you expect to do? Divorce your husband, marry the new crush (if he'll have you), and continue the merry-go-round? Rather a hopeless future, isn't it? Instead, why not settle down and act your age, which, while admittedly young, is old enough to insure some sense.

Her Sentimental Spree
You married your husband to suit your own convenience; certainly you are morally bound to give him a happy home. That you are at last in love is a questionable assumption at best. Love comes and goes too easily for you; you have the word sadly confused with "infatuation" or "attraction."

To you falling in love is just one sentimental spree after another. Has it ever occurred to you that a little loyalty, a little sacrifice are also involved?

What you need, young lady, is a return to the fundamentals of housewifery. You certainly can't be doing much of a job as a homemaker if you have so much time to fritter away on casual romances. You can scarcely expect your husband to give you much attention while your thoughts and affection are turned elsewhere.

You'll never get anywhere — except into trouble — via your present route, so suppose you make up your mind to change it. Begin with a thorough housecleaning. Include your own soul in the general mopping up. Do a little sterilizing

Government Lost Second Best Leader

(Editor's Note: Jack Bell, who writes of the nation's political scene, has been chief of the Associated Press Senate staff for 15 years. He has had a close-up view of the legislative machinery, in the open and behind the scenes, and similarly has followed Taft's political career.)

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—The voice of a great American is still heard. Death has taken Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio. And it is no overstatement to say that from President Eisenhower's political administration has departed the one leader—besides the President himself—who could have taken the place of the President.

For Taft was more than the nominal floor leader of Senate Republicans, more than the "Mr. Republican" he was to many of his party, more than a non-heated champion of old-fashioned personal liberty, more than a blind man who thought quickly—and often blurted his thoughts whether they pleased or irked his hearers.

His place in the Senate, Taft's balance wheel and a uniting force who kept his factions from flying off in tangential directions. He was also a master legislator at the legislative level, a senator who knew the Senate's every mood, calculated its temper, dodged its pride, coaxed its compromising spirit—his handling of the Senate was a masterpiece.

Eisenhower, too, has lost a friend. Between those two men who looked at each other in the presidential nomination fight last year and grown up by degrees a mutual respect, a golf course camaraderie and finally a warm friendship.

He was shortly before a trip to Augusta, Ga., in April to join a presidential golf tournament that Taft complained of the first signs of his total illness. It was only, he said, a strange weakness in the knees. A severe hip pain developed later and complications followed.

The Senate, grown used of late to seeing the tall, balding Ohioan slumping around on crutches, has lost the first weighty impact of his presence.

There the mechanics of politics may seal a Democrat, named by Ohio's Democratic Gov. Frank Lausche, to give the present minority party a 40-17 advantage over the Republicans.

Helped by Sen. Morse (Ind.-Ore.), Democrats could take over that branch of Congress. Almost unanimously, they don't want that control now. But the lure of committee chairmanships, patronage and prestige is strong. It may be a different story next January or in the intervening special session.

The Senate majority leadership, vacant by Taft's death, is expected to be filled by Sen. Knowland (Calif.). Knowland, who has been acting leader in Taft's absence, might have opposition, but no decision on the post is expected until January.

In the heart of the Senate, a hypercritical lineup, that Taft's death has left a void seldom created by the passing of another senator.

Despite its sometime pomp and circumstance, the Senate does business as a man to man basis. Bills brought or die on the turn of eloquent conversation. Compromises have been in floor huddles behind railroad workers into uniform.

It was in this sort of informal give and take that the senator from Ohio excelled. He had his own ideas about legislation but he was usually flexible, ever ready to listen to the other side.

When a colleague had Taft's promise, he could bank it and draw on it when needed, confident of delivery.

His ability to judge the Senate's reaction made Taft's advice invaluable at conferences of congressional leaders and the President.

There is evidence that many administration proposals either were dropped entirely or radically revised on his judgment.

Within his party, Taft was preeminent, a leader who rallied grumbling dissenters into at least the semblance of a solid front. For the Ohioan held the confidence of Republicans who liked to call themselves "nationalists" and the respect of the so-called "internationalists."

His leaving influence will be missed with those of his party who regard Eisenhower with none of the longtime political affection they held for Taft, who was, by all odds, the strident voice of the middle United States.

Without his restraining hand, these men may turn further and further away from the world leadership role which Eisenhower has striven to mold for his party.

And no more will the force of Taft's dominant personality temper the extreme edge of the Republican liberals, blunt the baying ram of the GOP reactionaries and channel his party into the middle way that Eisenhower says is his own goal.

For Taft the man, life had its valleys of disappointment and its peaks of achievement.

A man with strong family ties, the Ohioan wanted more than anything to follow the footsteps of his father, William Howard Taft, into the White House. The presidential nomination prize was eluded in his grasp last year, only to be snatched away by Eisenhower—a man Taft bitterly felt had no real claim on it.

But that bitterness washed away and was replaced by an overwhelming determination to make the new Republican administration a success—to demonstrate to the country it could still hold on to its individual liberty in the face of increasingly complex government.

As legislative monuments, Taft has left the Taft-Hartley Act, a series of social welfare bills and his single handed stand that blocked down former President Truman's proposal to draft striking railroad workers into uniform.

U. S. Time Workers Reject Offer

LITTLE ROCK, Aug. 5.—The President of U. S. Time Corp. was quoted last night as rejecting the request of some 1,100 striking union workers for a wage increase.

Stanley C. Amren, manager of the struck Little Rock plant, said Corporation President J. Lehnkuhl of Waterbury, Conn., had instructed him to give the union formal notice of his rejection of their demands.

Picket lines were established Friday by members of the AFL International Association of Machinists after wage talks bogged down.

D. C. Brown of Dallas, union representative, had said that Lehnkuhl was the "only one who can settle the strike."

The president is expected to arrive from Europe tomorrow, but

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—Secretary of State Dulles' trip to South Korea by the beginning of his line of by opposes their admittance now, troubles, first with President Syngman Rhee, then with the Chinese Communists, and later perhaps with America's allies.

Since the Chinese were not the vanquished, but only the other side in a stalemate war, they don't have to yield anything at the peace conference opening in the fall. It would be astonishing if they did.

Their plans are the opposite of Amren said he had conferred with him by cablegram and transatlantic telephone.

The union originally requested a 15-cent-an-hour wage boost, retroactive to June 15, but subsequently offered to settle for 10 cents hourly now and 5 cents more in December.

U.S. Time has offered 3 cents retroactive to June 15 with a second 3 cent raise to come in December.

Both Brown and Amren said last night that the dispute had reached a "stalemate." However, Brown said he had not received official notice of the president's rejection and "we'll just have to wait and see what they do."

this country's. But if they could be softened by anything Dulles said, which seems out of the question, he could hardly have had a softening effect on them with what he's said already.

He's notified them, by way of a public statement, that he'll oppose their admittance to the United Nations, if that's what they have in mind. He could no longer say much else since Congress formally opposes their admittance now.

And if they're not showing signs of doing business within 90 days after the conference opens, Dulles said, this country will walk out.

What does Dulles want from the Red Chinese? Their agreement to let North and South Korea be unified, for one thing. Dulles is thinking of unification under the friendly government of the South.
